

Imagine

by Kriya Jaiganesh

Imagine a world in which race has no meaning
The color of one's skin is no cause For speculation or trepidation that one strives to break laws
And no matter whether you are black or white light as snow or dark as night Respect and trust is always worth gleaming

Potential is considered something from within "where will you go?" rather than "where have you been?"
Love is the only measure, of worth and kindness, a treasure For which here there is no key, but in that world, is given liberally

Imagine a world, far and wide Where no one has to run or hide,
For laws and such are set in place,
But remain unbroken, and held with grace

Weapons and gunfire, none exist the touch of words, instead of fist Peace and Love, Love and Trust Accept of nothing but what is just and wise, they know nothing good comes from lies, in their eyes, just ignorance in disguise

The effect of a bullet is understood, They think "what can?" Instead of "what could?"
They know that one single shot, Kills a brother, a husband, a father While here, there is no bother
What is wrong, to fight what fought?

Imagine a future where a girl can dream
To grow up and be Supreme, like RBG, and to fight For what she believes is right, and ignite her own fire, pave the way for others who desire To be equal, to be same, for we are all different players, but we play the same game

Let us break free of this toxic society,
The standards set upon us for what they call "beauty" Plastic surgery, to get the perfect body but all bodies are perfect, that's what they can't see

This is our future, that is the past
The future, what can be, the past does not last Accept that this is the new generation We are the creation, born from motivation, and we're done with discrimination, it's time for renovation Conservation got us nowhere, it's liberation that can repair centuries of alienation, segregation, from the plantation owners to the lady on the street who called you a slur It's people like her who are the real contamination need some inspiration?

Breonna Taylor, shot "accidentally",
Asian people being treated like they're the disease,
Horrific examples of police brutality,
Inequity to people because of their sexuality, White supremacy, the Ku Klux Klan, encouraged by the very man who led our country,
I can't breathe
George Floyd's last plea, before he was killed by a policeman's knee

We can't ignore reality.
Let's feed on our frustration. It's time for termination.

Imagine a future, re-imagine the present at least now we know what we need to prevent, we'll prevail, over discrimination of any kind, don't be blind Combined, we can rewrite humankind, for while everything now might be misaligned,
The future remains undefined.
